INTRODUCTION

Inclusive Education (IE) is about removing the barriers that exclude people from the education system. An Inclusive Education system ensures that all children in a given community, whatever their learning needs, speeds, age, gender, ethnic background, and economic status can be fully included in the mainstream system. This involves making some changes to the whole system and structures of education to enable this to happen. Inclusion happens when everyone feels welcome and appreciated. Inclusive Education is based on the right of all learners to a quality education that meets basic learning needs and enriches lives. Education is providing equal opportunities to all students. Now it is crucial that all teachers ensure inclusive practice for all students in their classroom. And the Widerschool under inclusion model. Students with special needs spend most or all of their time with non-disabled students. Implementation of these practices varies. Schools most frequently use them for selected students with mild to severe special needs.

Inclusion is about the child’s right to participate and the school’s duty to accept the child. Inclusion rejects the use of special schools or classrooms to separate students with disabilities. From students without disabilities. A premium is placed upon full participation by students with disabilities and upon respect for their social, civil and educational rights. Inclusion gives students with disabilities skills. They can use in and out of the classroom. Fully inclusive schools, which are rare, no longer distinguish between ‘General Education’ and ‘Special Education’ programs; instead, the school is restructured so that all students learns together.
