Introduction:
Drama is a potentially powerful tool for connecting students with learning and content. We know that learning is an active, constructive process of coming to know. And through our classroom involvement with students, we have found that drama can provide a process for learning by living through or experiencing an event. Drama by its very nature involves students in social contexts where they are required to think, talk, manipulate concrete materials, and share viewpoints in order to arrive at decisions.

Definition skill development:
WHO defined life skill as “Life skill education to facilitatethe practice and reinforcement of psychosocial skills in a culturally and development appropriate way; it contribute to the promotion of personal and social development, the presentation of health and social problems, and the protection of human rights.” WHO has given the list of 10 life skills as follows:
